MANY ATTEND ARMISTICE DAY CELEBRATION

Col. Smith and Clarence Diver Render Excellent Speeches

FOOTBALL IS FEATURE

Armistice Day celebration in Antioch Saturday was attended by a large gathering. The celebration was started at 1 o'clock when a twenty-piece band, led by G. A. Peterson of Antioch, played "America" and a group of Grade School children sang. The introducing of the first speaker of the day was very nicely executed by the Rev. M. J. Mumford, introducing Col. A. V. Smith, state's attorney of Waukegan. Col. Smith very emphatically impressed the solemnity of the day on his hearers with a graphic description of a battlefield scene personally witnessed by himself at St. Mihiel. Mr. Smith's speech was occasionally interrupted with applause and on a whole was very well received by those fortunate to be there. The second speaker of the day was Attorney Clarence Diver, a very popular attorney and speaker of Waukegan. His speech touched on conditions brought about by the war and prophesied the well-being of the country despite arguments advanced by bolshevik minded calumnists to the effect that the country is fast approaching an upheaval. Mr. Diver's speech made a great impression on his hearers and was loudly applauded at the close.

After the speeches the band formed and a march was made to the football field where a large crowd witnessed a very exciting game of football between Crystal Lake and the local high school. The "kids" were very appropriately taken care of with daylight bombs which were exploded by members of the fire department, each bomb containing either flags or balloons, which was a prize for any of the kids who was lucky enough to secure one.

After the game the band marched back to town and played a few more pieces before disbanding. The evening celebration was taken up by the women's annual ball. The Opera House was crowded to the doors for this event and the women were very much pleased with the financial success of the affair. On the whole the celebration was a success and it is to be hoped the town will hold more of these celebrations.

UNCLAIMED MAIL AT THE ANTIOCH POSTOFFICE

The following unclaimed letters are at the Antioch Postoffice: Mrs. Anderson, Loom Lake; Mrs. Becker, Loom Lake; Mrs. Christman, Loom Lake; Mrs. Drobek, Morgan C. Foster, Mrs. O. Gullitson, Mrs. Gersentor, Mrs. C. Hotchkiss, Mrs. Hafferman, Mrs. E. Hatlatz, Mrs. Bernice Jenner, Mrs. Johnson, Mrs. Koiker, Mrs. Kutz, Mrs. S. McDaniel, Mrs. O. Mokkelbust, Mrs. W. M. Meares, Mrs. J. Pederson, Mrs. E. Reid, Mrs. Rink, Mrs. Ringman, Merchant Smith, E. Shultz.

SMITH PUBLISHING COMPANY LAUNCHES CAMPAIGN HERE

The Smith Publishing Company of Milwaukee sent representatives to Antioch the past week to inaugurate an educational series of the advantages of "Buying in Antioch." The salesmen, Mr. Grossman and Mr. Spines, personally conducted the campaign and are running their articles in The Antioch News, the first of which appears in today's issue. Mr. Grossman gave a ten-minute talk before the Armistice Day booster gathering at the Village Hall on Monday evening of last week.

20 Years Ago in Antioch

Mrs. E. Boylan was a Chicago visitor on Monday.

The new Methodist church, at Richmond will be dedicated Sunday, Nov. 23.

J. C. James, Jr., was transacting business in Waukegan Monday.

N. S. Burnett left on Monday for Springfield as a delegate to the grand lodge of I. O. O. F. which holds their annual encampment this week.

Lee Burnett who has been working in Milwaukee and Fond du Lac for the past year, arrived home Saturday and will probably remain during the winter.

The football game between Richmond and Antioch last Saturday was very interesting. Notwithstanding the fact that Antioch did not score, they put up a plucky fight against a heavier line, some of whom were professional players. All guns were end runs, supported. Brooks and Wallis distinguished themselves in their fierce line work which would have given Antioch a touchdown if it had not been repeated fumbles of quarterback. Excellent work was done by Cubbon, Pitman and others of the team, and all in all Antioch had the stronger team. The score, Richmond 17, Antioch 0.

On Saturday evening last, a joint reception was given at the Woodman Hall by Lotus Camp, M. W. A. and Olson Camp, R. N. A., of Antioch, in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Drom, who will this week take up their residence at Genoa Junction.

H. E. Williams Passed Away on Wednesday

Harold E. Williams passed away at the Chicago General Hospital yesterday afternoon at five o'clock. Mr. Williams entered the hospital on Monday and was operated on Tuesday.

His wife, mother and grandmother were at his bedside when the end reached the hospital in the me.

Mr. Williams was manager of the Williams Bros. Department store, and is the son of W. R. Williams. Further details will be published in next week's issue.

Mr. W. R. Williams announces that the Williams Bros. store will be closed until after the funeral.

A surprise party was given in honor of Charles W. Potter's birthday at Dressel's hotel. The evening was spent by playing cards and it proved as he won first prize. Mr. Jacoby won the booby prize. Mrs. Naleckie won first ladies prize and Mrs. Ames the booby prize. After the games refreshments were served. All had an enjoyable time.

Mrs. Ed. Dressel gave a farewell supper for Mr. and Mrs. Panklin last week.

Mr. Hasty and Mr. Jockoby of Bluff Lake are painting C. W. Potter's house. Mr. J. F. Dressel and wife of Chicago, formerly of Antioch, spent last Sunday with his sister, Mrs. Charles W. Potter of Lake Marie.

Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Glenn spent the week end at their parents' home, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Messing.

Harry Messing spent the week at Evanston.

LOCAL MEN SELECTED FOR DECEMBER GRAND JURY

The grand jury for the December term, beginning Dec. 4, was named Saturday by the Circuit Court Clerk Lewis O. Brockway and includes Joseph James and Nason Sibbey of Antioch, Arthur Simpson of Lake Villa and Grant Murrio of Newport.

Royal Neighbors Entertain Many At Lodge Dinner

Last Tuesday was a big day for Olson Camp, No. 450, R. N. A. Several weeks ago the members had planned a grand jollification and although the weather was very unfavorable for a few days previous, on Tuesday many guests assembled here from Waukegan, Libertyville, Gurnee, Graylake and Lake Villa.

Promptly at noon a sumptuous dinner was served in the basement of the M. E. Church, which had been tastefully decorated in the lodge colors, purple and white. Covers were laid for one hundred and seventy-five and every place was filled. Before partaking of the dinner all joined in singing a song especially written for the occasion. This was followed by a vocal solo by Mrs. Leonard Hughes.

Mrs. W. F. Ziegler presided at the dinner and the guests were escorted to the Opera house and after opening a special meeting of the camp in the usual manner, the Antioch officers escorted the officers of Cedar Lake camp, No. 460, of Lake Villa to the various stations, and this camp staff, under the direction of the orator, Mrs. Georgia Avery, conferred the degree upon six candidates in a most creditable manner.

At the close of the ceremonies of initiation the audience was favored by three vocal selections by one of its members, Mrs. Addie Williams. Next on the program was Neighbor Mat thews, who delighted the gathering with two well chosen readings. Next came Neighbor Jennie R. Chilstrom, supervising deputy of Lake county, who always has something of interest to talk about. Camp was then closed in due form, after which the Antioch members bid goodbye to their guests and all expressed a desire to come together in another general good time sometime in the near future.

After the business of the afternoon was concluded the neighbors who had charge of the cooking and serving returned to the church basement and that was left decided to invite in their husbands and have a general good time at six o'clock. Over forty responded to this call and when they had finished, no one was overburdened by carrying away what was left. A special and unexpected feature of this affair was the announcement that it was the birthday anniversary of A. W. Beck. Mr. Kuelman called attention to the fact and with a few words presented Mr. Beck with a fair-sized box, which he was loathe to open. However he was prevailed upon to open it and after several minutes of work and stickpin.

This gathering broke up about 7 o'clock and the members of Olson camp went to the Woodman hall where they held their regular meeting. Altogether it was a full day for the Royal Neighbors, but one that they will long remember.

Happenings at the Grade School

Seventh and eighth grades—The grade school has a number of records.

The fifth and sixth grades made music booklets this week.

Adella Rentner, Roberta Lewis and Dorothy Brogan entertained the 7th and 8th grades with selection on the piano Friday morning.

Mr. Beckwith of the Madden school near Libertyville, visited Antioch grade school last Thursday.

Monday afternoon the pupils of the 2d and 3d grades had a very delightful surprise party for Miss Tibbitts. They presented her with a large basket of fruit and a box of nuts and candy.

Robert Alvera was visiting in Chicago over the week end. He was absent Monday.

The fifth and sixth grades have a new daily health guide chart.

The children of Miss Andrew's room gave a little play called "The Grass Hopper" Friday afternoon for the school.

The pupils of the 2d primary room are busy selling tickets for the program, which is to be held on Friday evening at the high school.

The 7th and 8th grades received their report cards Monday evening.

Program of Events For Wednesday, Nov. 22

- 12:00—Opening of Gates by Mayor. Blowing of Whistles, Booming of Guns and Ringing of Bells.
 - 12:30-1:30—Barbecue.
 - 2:00—Parade, forming at Public School grounds, Floats and Various Displays. Clowns for the Kids.
 - 3:00—Public Speaking.
 - 4:00—Vaudeville Performance.
 - 5:00-6:00—Dancing on Street.
 - Intermission
 - 7:30—Doors Open for Big Firemen's Dance.
- There will be band concerts throughout the afternoon.

There will be another joint meeting of the Fire Department and the business men and others of the several committees and to act on any further suggestions that may be brought up for the good of Antioch Day.

MAMMOTH CELEBRATION ON WEDNESDAY, NOV. 22; IS TOWN'S BIGGEST EVENT

Official Opening of the Road Through Antioch, Barbecue, Speeches, Vaudeville, Float Parade and Dancing Will Be Included in the Events of the Day

FIREMEN TO HOLD THEIR DANCE IN GARAGE

Antioch will formally open its section of Route 21 Wednesday, November 22. A joint meeting of the Fire Department and the business men resulted in elaborate plans being formulated for the occasion. The plans call for the formal opening of the gate by the village president, Frank R. King at 12:00 o'clock on the day above mentioned, accompanied by the blowing of whistles and ringing of bells.

At 12:30 a barbecue will be open to the public on the main street. Mr. Roeschlein of the Antioch Packing Co. will donate the beef for this occasion.

At 2:00 p. m. a parade will form, with floats representing the business houses of Antioch and others who may wish to participate. The parade will be headed by one of the best bands that the committee in charge of music can secure for that day. It is expected that the different lodges of the town will participate in the parade as well as the Woman's Club and the schools.

At 3:00 p. m. there will be public speaking, and if there is any possible chance of securing him, no less a person than the governor himself will be on hand.

At 4:00 p. m. a vaudeville show will be given, some very good talent being secured for this event.

At 5:00 p. m. there will be a public dance on the main street if weather conditions permit.

At 7:30 p. m. the Firemen will hold a big dance in the Antioch Sales and Service Station. This event should prove very popular and no doubt will be enjoyed by one of the greatest gatherings of old and young folks that has ever been witnessed in Antioch.

Antioch hopes to have all its neighborhood communities participate and help make this occasion one of the biggest events ever staged here. It is hoped the schools for that day and one and all pack into the little old jitney and hie themselves Antiochward.

Present arrangements call for a big booster parade Monday in which it is expected most of the merchants of the village will participate and literature will be distributed to every corner and nook in this section of the county. This parade will gather at the fire station at 9:00 a. m. on Monday morning.

BANK SCARE CAUSES MUCH LOSS OF SLEEP

Monday morning, at 4 a. m., the members of the fire department tumbled out of bed in response to the screech of the siren. Imagine their surprise when they were informed that there was no fire, but that the burglar alarm of the State Bank was ringing.

There was a scurrying of sleepy-eyed men for guns of every nature. Silently and stealthily little groups advanced on the bank, but the light in the front window revealed nothing. Then a few of the more daring started toward the rear of the building. The banging of a back door by John Pacini startled one little band for a moment, but they soon started to advance again until a complete survey of the district had been made, giving no avoidance of burglars.

It leaked out later that the burglar alarm had been ringing since 1:00 and that Mr. Ziegler himself had been down to the bank in a vain attempt to stop it and returned home to bed. The ringing was caused by crossed wires.

What Is the Fifty-Second Lake in County

What is the fifty-second lake in Lake County?

This question has been running in a Chicago paper for some time and numerous answers have been received. One suggested that McCollum Lake was right.

James C. Deavir comes forward with what he says is the correct solution. He says the missing lake is Mud Lake—a second Mud Lake in Lake County. It is suggested that Mr. Deavir ought to know as he propounded the question and has fished in every one of the lakes in this county.

His letter to the Chicago paper follows:

"Here are the fifty-two lakes of Lake County. Count them. You will find two Mud lakes, one lies just west of Loar Lake and the other between answer to the puzzle. Now that the Blue and Little lakes. This is the Fish Fans' Club has an earnest program of activity in the interest of fish propagation and preservation, we look forward to some good fishing right close to home in:

Farm Bureau News

By J. J. Doerschuk, Farm Adviser

Pullets will lay all winter if they get started in September or October. It is best to feed them heavily on a good laying ration right along. Tankage should be included in the mash. A good mixture is made up as follows: 100 lbs. each of ground corn, ground oats, bran middlings and tankage. Tankage may be obtained from Darling & Co., Swift & Co. or Armour & Co., Chicago, also from some of the local dealers. Be sure to get high grade tankage. Comparisons on 40 farms in Michigan recently showed that where tankage was fed to the flock, the net return per hen was more than twice where it was not fed.

The culling season is now over. The proper time to do this work is during September.

Prices of farm products at the farm relative to 1913 as 100 are: Wool 139, Cotton 170, potatoes 124, Eggs 118, Butter 124, Hogs 114, wheat 112, Corn 105, Hay 96, Beef Cattle 93, Hurray for the sheep breeders. Wool now has a protective tariff of 31 cents a pound, the most effective rate on the entire schedule. You can thank your national organization for this kind of results. Let's keep a few more sheep on Lake County farms. They pay and help keep the place cleaned up. De Witt County reports a Farm Bureau member who sold $600 worth of lambs and wool from 40 ewes this year. Not a bad side line at all when the cost of keeping them averages less than other kinds of livestock.

Membership Campaign in December

The F. B. Executive committee is making preparation for a membership campaign in December. Mr. M. J. Wright of Woodstock has been employed as campaign manager for the county. It is with the desire to have all memberships begin at the same time that this drive is being put on now. Some 400 or more memberships expired last April and the balance will expire next July. It was therefore decided to re-sign all memberships to start January 1st. Rebate will be given all those members whose terms expire July 1st after they sign up again.

Several Illinois counties are putting on drives to renew their Farm Bureau memberships. Some are meeting with excellent results and some are not. A farmer demonstrates his loyalty to his organization in the manner in which he pays his dues, by the degree of interest he shows in the work of his organization, with his willingness to defend the Farm Bureau and his readiness to boost.

The committee is anxious to have all members actually support this drive. The committee has had this matter under consideration for the past several months and is unanimous in desiring to complete it at this time. The new farm adviser, Mr. J. J. Doerschuk, is now at work in the county and is anxious to meet the members either in the office or on their own farms. He is anxious to receive requests for farm visits. Remember Saturday is office day. If you are in Libertyville drop into the office.

HOBSON'S TOO

It was a small town hotel and the traveling salesman, lured to the horrors of such places, entered the dining room with delight to see written on the room with forebodings. He grasped the menu:

"Choice—Fillet saute, broiled young chicken, beef stew."

"A decent place at last," exclaimed the salesman. "I'll have fillet saute."

"Sorry, sir, but that's out," answered the waiter.

The guest was somewhat disappointed, but one must put up with these things.

"Broiled chicken, then," he ordered. But that was out, too. Then the salesman exploded.

"What do you mean by a choice of three dishes?" he roared.

"Ah," the waiter replied, "you see, sir, it's the proprietor who takes the choice."

REFORMED

"So on her account you gave up smoking?"

"Yes, sir."

"And you don't drink now, because she doesn't like you drinking?"

"Yes, sir."

"And for the same reason you no longer swear?"

"That's it, sir."

"And you never go to dances, or play billiards, or bet, or have a hand at bridge?"

"Because she didn't like me to."

"Then why on earth didn't you marry her?"

"Because I was so reformed that I saw I could do better."

BEST SOURCES OF FILAMENT CURRENT

Storage Battery in Conjunction With a Rectifier Forms the Ideal Power Supply.

When the filament current of a vacuum tube is adjusted at normal rated value a small change in filament current will cause a large change in the plate current. Suppose a certain tube is used in a regenerative receiver circuit. Not only does a variation in filament current change the plate current and cause a sound in the telephone receivers, but the plate impedance is changed, and the energy fed back to the grid circuit is changed, which causes the variations in plate current to be amplified.

In order, then, to maintain the plate impedance constant and also to reduce tube noises to a minimum, especially if the receiver is used for radiophone reception, the ideal source of filament current should be at a constant potential. A storage battery represents the best source of constant potential for filament current supply. For those who have alternating current available and want the best results, a storage battery in conjunction with a rectifier forms the ideal power supply for the filaments of the tube. This is especially true if amplifiers are used in conjunction with the receiver, for any variations in filament current causing noises in an amplifier set will be amplified by the successive tubes until the original noises become a veritable roar.

If a single tube is used for reception without amplifiers it is possible denser, it is not only possible to tune finely, but also, by changing the ratio of capacity to inductance used to receive the same signal, the sharpness of tuning can be varied.

The grid circuit of the tube is coupled to the antenna circuit by means of a few turns of wire on the rotor of the vario-coupler. The tuning of the circuit is accomplished by means of the grid variometer. The grid condenser is the grid with respect to the filament, so that the only capacity in shunt with the inductance in the grid circuit is that between the grid and filament in the tube. The shunt capacity gives the greatest inductance with a very small value of voltage variation on the grid for a given signal in the antenna. Since a vacuum tube depends for its operation on the amplitude of the voltage applied to the grid, it is desirable to use only very small values of shunt capacity in the grid circuit, especially on short waves.

DR. STEINMETZ ON LIGHTNING

Noted Authority Answers a Question of Interest to Fans the World Over.

Doctor Steinmetz, who is an authority on high-power electrical phenomena, was asked the following question during his visit to the radio congress: Question: Doctor Steinmetz, many of us have amateur radio receiving sets in our homes. We have heard rumors that the underwriters consider that there is a fire hazard because of the antenna and the ground connections, and that certain restrictions may be placed on amateur installations. We would like to have your opinion as to the real hazard involved.

Answer: There is no hazard in the amateur radio receiving stations. It involves no fire risk nor risk to life. It is merely a harmless toy, but is a great deal more than a toy. It is one of the most valuable developments of the last years, by its instructive and educational value and the recreation and pleasure which it supplies. It would, thereto use alternating current as source of filament current. There will always be present in the telephone receivers a 60-cycle hum, but by the use of certain circuits and auxiliary apparatus, this 60-cycle hum can be reduced to a minimum.

The use of alternating current as a source of power supply for the filaments of the vacuum tube has its greatest advantages in cheapness, low maintenance, and the small amount of space needed for its apparatus. A small stepdown transformer of such ratio as to reduce the house lighting current to six volts, and of sufficient capacity to light the filament of one tube, can be mounted inside a receiving cabinet as an integral part of the set.

The greatest disadvantage of using alternating current on the filament of a vacuum tube is the over present 60-cycle hum, and since the supply circuit potential is not absolutely constant, the filament current will vary from time to time, making it necessary to frequently adjust the filament rheostat.

The simplest method of using alternating current for filament current supply is to connect the usual "A" battery leads from the receiver to a toy stepdown transformer which will deliver six volts, as shown in Figure R. This connection, however, will cause a very loud hum in the receivers. Even though the incoming signal will be just as loud as though direct current were used on the filament the alternating current hum is so loud that it will drown out the average signal. Standard vacuum tubes require a potential drop across the filament of approximately five and one-half volts.

Progressing from the circuit arrangement to one in which the grid circuit is inductively coupled to the antenna, we have the circuit shown in Figure Q. In this type of circuit arrangement all of the circuits are tuned and the vacuum tube functions simultaneously as detector, amplifier and oscillator.

The antenna oscillator circuit consists of a variable and the tapped primary of a vario-coupler. By the use of a variable antenna series con-fore, be very regrettable if, by a misguided public opinion, obstructions were placed in the way of the fullest and freest developments of the amateur radio station. With regard to the possible lightning risk from the grounded antenna, first—the lightning risk in a city is very remote in any case, and, second—the grounded antenna rather acts like a lightning rod and exercises a protective action against lightning. Any danger from the radio power received by the amateur station obviously is ridiculous when considering that the energy of a single pound of coal would be more than enough to operate the radio receiving station continuously for over a thousand years. Certainly this is not enough energy to do harm.

RADIO FLASHES

Yvonne MacCaughy, head of Hawaiian public schools, is arranging to install standard receiving sets in all rural schools. Extension courses, especially in agriculture, will be broadcast from the University of Hawaii. Broadening now appears as an aid to stenographic students, furnishing them with speeches for transcription in practicing to increase their speed. Several business schools are taking up radio receiving for their speed classes.

On the Pacific coast radio is being extensively used to sell Bibles. Lectures about the Bible are broadcast and an automobile rig is used with an antenna tower the section, giving sales talks by a radio loud speaker.

The longest long-distance radio station, Nauyas, in Germany, is to be altered so as to increase its range and to meet the increasing traffic in the United States and Argentine republic. The plans include the erection of seven new masts, each 839 feet high, and the dismantling of four of the existing masts.

History's Mysteries

COPYRIGHT BY THE WHEELER NEWSPAPER SYNDICATE

THE BURDELL MURDER

WHENEVER a mysterious murder case finds space upon the first pages of New York newspapers and begins to command nation-wide attention it is fairly certain that sooner or later, the commentators will compare its details and those of the Burdell affair, one of the most mysterious crimes in the annals of the metropolitan police force, a murder which included every element of the sensational and bizarre.

Dr. Harvey Burdell, the chief figure in the mystery, was a dentist who, solely through his own efforts had built up a wide and extensive practice in the city and had been connected with at least three approaches to matrimony which had resulted in pre-nuptial quarrels and consequent severance of agreements. At the time of his death, Dr. Burdell had been living in a house rented by a Mrs. Cunningham, the dentist using one of the front rooms for his office and sleeping at the rear. He kept only one servant, a combination office-boy and valet who slept outside the house. The only residents of the building were a manufacturer named Eckel and George V. Snodgrass, the son of a clergyman.

One rainy afternoon Dr. Burdell left the house about five o'clock and, as several persons afterwards testified, walked in the direction of Broadway up Chambers street. Mrs. Cunningham and her two other lodgers were in the house all evening, but heard nothing which seemed in the least out of the ordinary, retiring at the usual hour.

Early the next morning, the office boy attempted to enter Dr. Burdell's office in order to attend to his usual round of cleaning and found that the door appeared to be jammed by some heavy object pressing against it from the inside. Pushing harder, the door finally gave way and the servant staggered into the room, only to be halted by the sight of his employer lying upon the floor, fully dressed and with the light still burning brightly. The corpse, however, was covered with clotted blood and there were large splashes of blood over practically every piece of furniture in the room, as well as on the floor, the walls and a portion of the ceiling. The dentist had evidently put up a hard fight for his life but had finally succumbed to the more than a dozen wounds found upon his body—wounds which had very evidently been made by a long, slender dagger, something on the order of a stiletto.

Further to complicate matters, the investigations of the police developed that at least two persons had been connected with the crime—one of them having partially throttled the dentist by means of a thin cord, while the other had repeatedly stabbed him. The position of the wounds also indicated that one of the assailants was left-handed, for no right-handed person could have delivered blows at the angles of those in Dr. Burdell's body. Upon the slight evidence presented by the fact that Mrs. Cunningham, the landlady, was left-handed, she was immediately arrested as were Eckel and Snodgrass. But, at the trial, which ensued, the defense was able to riddle the statements of the prosecution, with ridiculous ease, presenting a number of counter questions which were still unsolved by the theory of the police that Mrs. Cunningham, with the aid of her lodgers, had killed Dr. Burdell. Among these were:

Where had the dentist been during the time which elapsed between five o'clock when he left the house and midnight, the hour at which the murder had been committed? A number of persons had seen him go out, but no one had seen him return.

Why had the noise of the struggle not aroused a woman in the next house, separated only by a very thin wall? What were the papers which had been burned in the fireplace of the murder-chamber? If Mrs. Cunningham, Eckel or Snodgrass had been implicated in the crime, why did none of their clothes bear the slightest stain of blood, while the room where Dr. Burdell had been killed was literally smeared with it? And, finally, what was the motive for murder—since the dentist's jewelry and several hundred dollars in cash had not been touched?

After the trial, which lasted only three days and resulted in the immediate acquittal of Mrs. Cunningham, the landlady sprung another sensation when she declared that she had been married to Dr. Burdell and that she was entitled to his estate. Her contention, however, was never fully established and she lost her suit for the property of the dead man, finally dying in poverty in a tiny flat in Harlem, while Dr. Burdell's brother went insane as a result of the strain of the trial and Eckel died in the Albany penitentiary, while serving a sentence in connection with the Blacky murders.

Years have elapsed since the Burdell murder, but today the case is just as much of a mystery as it was upon that morning early in January when the body of the dentist was discovered by his valet.

"WHO WAS PAMELA?"

WHEN in going through Montmartre tourists are taken through the famous cemetery in that portion of Paris, they usually pause for a moment as they pass a modest headstone bearing the single word "Pamela," particularly since those which surround it are literally covered with facts and figures concerning the history of the persons who lie buried there.

"Who was Pamela?" ask the tourists, turning inquiringly to the guide. And that personage merely shrugs his shoulders, smiles and replies: "That, monsieur, is what the world would like to know—for here is the grave of a remarkable woman, the idol of royalty, the toast of France. But who she was or where she came from are questions that have never been answered."

"Pamela," continues the guide, with that quick grasp of historical data which is common to those who direct visitors in various sections of Europe, "was the name given to the beautiful child brought from England to be the playmate of the little ones in the palace of the Duc de Chartres, later the Duke of Orleans. Golden haired, blue-eyed, a veritable sprite, the little girl won all hearts, in spite of the fact that there was very evidently a dark mystery about her origin. There were some at court who shook their heads and shrugged their shoulders meaningly when, as she grew up, the girl called 'Pamela' began to make conquests which were more and more widespread. But the secrecy which veiled her birth did not affect her popularity in the slightest. She was the inspiration of countless poets, the cause of scores of duels and when her heart was finally won by the Irish Lord Edward Fitz Gerald, son of the Duke of Leinster, there were many who left Paris because they could not bear to see her married to another."

"The announcement of her approaching marriage to Lord Edward brought from London the same question which Paris had been asking for many years: 'Who is Pamela?' and in the marriage contract, still to be seen at Tournay, the bride is described as 'Stephanie Caroline Anne Shims, known as 'Pamela,' native of London, daughter of William Berkeley and Mary Shims."

"But this does not, by any means dispel the mystery surrounding this most charming of creatures, for the governess of the household of the Duc de Chartres maintained that she was the daughter of British nobility, while the Masonic Magazine, in the issue which appeared within a month after her marriage, declared that she was the daughter of the duke of Orleans himself. Moore, in his 'Life of Lord Edward Fitz Gerald,' leans to this theory, stating that the mother of 'Pamela' was none other than the governess in the duke's family who took such a marked interest in the girl."

"But no matter. These are only rumors—reports, founded only on gossip. History which is vague in the extreme about the origin of the beautiful 'Pamela,' is only too explicit as to her adventures after her marriage. Lord Edward Fitz Gerald became prominent in Irish politics and, like Sir Roger Casement more than a century later, decided to cast his lot with the French against England. Accordingly, he crossed the channel and arranged for a French invasion of Ireland, only to be betrayed and hounded, with a price of a thousand pounds upon his head. Those who were searching for him kept a close watch upon his wife and Lord Edward was finally captured in the apartments of the lovely 'Pamela,' who sold her jewels and everything she possessed in a vain attempt to bribe his jailers. The Irish lord lived only a short time afterward, dying as a result of wounds which he received when he was captured, and 'Pamela' returned to Paris where she lived until her death at the age of fifty-seven. Even then, this woman of mystery is described as admired and sought after; brilliant in society, remarkable for her levelness of fancy and play of wit—a creature born to win all hearts. Here lies what is left of her, interred under the single word that cloaked her true identity."

"Who was Pamela? That, monsieur, is a question that will probably not be truly answered until the Day of Judgment."

The Good Old Days.

Yesterday forenoon a well-dressed young lady, apparently about fifteen years of age, attempting to cross Grand street in her walk up Broadway, was encountered by a large hog, running from a dog. He struck her with such force as to knock her off her feet, and in falling, she struck her head on a large stone which cut a gash of nearly three inches in length; nor was it until after she had lain in a senseless and bleeding state for nearly two hours that she came to herself. How long are the citizens to endure this dangerous nuisance in open violation of the city ordinances? From the New York Evening Post of June 30, 1922.

He Wasn't Worrying.

Uncle—Engaged to two young women at the same time! Well, what are you going to do about it?

Wild Nephew—Oh, I'm all right; the question is, what are they going to do about it?

Natural.

Mr. Shott—How do you like these new pay-as-you-enter gates?
Mr. Pott—Seem kind of natural. Just like entering my house on Saturday night.

NATIONAL CAPITAL AFFAIRS

Penetrability to Change War and Peace

WASHINGTON.—Penetrability is a newly discovered force of nature by which the fangs on a dog's back, the mosquitoes in New York, or an army battling at the gates of a nation, may with equal ease be annihilated.

In 30 years of study, Alfred W. Lawson of Milwaukee, inventor of the airplane liner, reached these conclusions. He is in Washington conferring with the War department officials before whom he is ready to demonstrate the application of "penetrability" as a means of national defense.

"I have shown engineers of the War department how they can draw an imaginary line at any point without our borders, over land or water, and cause invisible forces to practically annihilate any number of men or ships intending to invade us," declares Lawson.

Broadcasting stations would be employed to hurl the deadly energies or currents into the enemy, it seems. According to Lawson modern warfare would be revolutionized.

"Penetrability is the cause of all movement," he said. "Energy is an effect produced by the penetrability of substances. A substance of heavy density passes through that of lighter density, thus creating currents. I have discovered the means of harnessing these currents and producing force which may be applied to war or commercial pursuits."

Commercially, he explained, penetrability may be employed in thousands of ways. It will exterminate bugs. It will help grow crops. Daylight may be stored up for use at night, eliminating the necessity of artificial illumination.

Uncle Sam's Policy on the Near East

WASHINGTON.—The attitude of the United States government toward the Near East problem was made plain by Secretary of State Hughes in a statement concerning the proposals just made by the allied governments to the Turkish nationalists.

This government believes any permanent settlement of the straits problem should provide for the freedom of the Dardanelles, the Sea of Marmora, and the Bosphorus, and it also hopes that pending a final settlement the straits will be kept open. The United States furthermore is in entire sympathy with the allied proposals for the protection of racial and religious minorities.

Mr. Hughes declined to comment upon those phases of the Near Eastern problem which involved questions of boundaries or other matters of a purely political nature.

"The American government," said Mr. Hughes, "is gratified to observe that the proposal of the three allied governments seeks to insure effectively, the liberty of the Dardanelles, the Sea of Marmora, and the Bosphorus as well as protection of racial and religious minorities. These points of the proposal are clearly in accord with American sentiment."

"This government also trusts that suitable arrangements may be agreed upon in the interest of peace to preserve the freedom of the straits pending the conference to conclude a final treaty of peace between Turkey, Greece, and the allies."

While it has been made plain in utterances both from the White House and from the State department that the American government would take no part in the political activities of the allies in the Near East, no secret has been made of the fact that this government is deeply interested in developments there.

The ever-increasing importance of the United States as a commercial power, coupled with the expansion of the American merchant marine, makes it imperative that American ships should be unrestricted in their goings and comings.

Best Little Lid-Clamper in the Capital

THE best little lid-clamper in Washington—that's Andrew J. Volstead, of Minneapolis, father of the well-known prohibition enforcement law bearing his name. Volstead's lid-clamping proclivities have not been limited simply to clamping down the lid on the national thirst. He puts the lid on a lot of legislation, and—he also keeps a lid on his own lips.

It was as chairman of the judiciary committee of the house that Volstead gave his name to the prohibition law and thereby won a niche in history. And it is as chairman of the same committee that he is able to sink without trace the hordes of bills, resolutions and proposals of all sorts for repealing, modifying or setting aside the enforcement law. No pigeonholes in congress are more crowded with dust-covered, forgotten documents than of the judiciary committee. And no lid is clamped more tightly against possible consideration and enactment of measures disapproved by the committee chairman.

Among the bills buried under the Volstead lid are proposals to amend the Constitution to permit wines and liquors of 10 per cent alcoholic content; to permit beer of 2 1/2 per cent alcohol; to permit the states to decide for themselves what constitutes "intoxicating liquors" under the eighteenth amendment; to provide a national referendum on prohibition; to transfer enforcement of prohibition from the treasury to the Department of Justice; to repeal the enforcement act, to amend the act and so on, by the score.

These bills were introduced, referred to committee—then buried. The lid clamped shut on them and they were gone! And if you try to tilt the lid, you find sitting atop of it a small but grim and very determined man who doesn't argue or plead or waste time in words, but exercises the prerogatives of his position as committee chairman and the weight of the dignity that position gives him to hold the lid firm.

He might aptly be described as "The Little Gray Man." He is sixty-two years of age, slight of build, unassuming in carriage. His plain, rather drabish-gray suit matches almost perfectly in hue the gray mustache and his hair, which in turn blends with the gray of his eyes.

Places for All Discharged Army Officers?

AN AGENCY to aid regular army officers eliminated from the service through operation of the bill requiring reduction of the officer corps to 12,000 by the first of the year has been established in the War department. It is announced, with the statement that any business house seeking to employ such former officers "can receive complete information of their qualifications by communicating with the adjutant general of the army or the corporate commanders."

"Of the officers to be separated from the service," it continued, "many are highly qualified professional men—lawyers, surgeons, chaplains, engineers, dentists and veterinarians. Many others are men of high attainments, qualified to fill responsible positions in commercial and industrial establishments."

"They have served the government for a long period, some of them for years or more, and have rendered faithful and efficient service. The United States government is indebted to them and it is only fitting that they should be afforded every opportunity to attain success in civil life."

In connection with the effort to aid such officers in finding civil employment a special file of the qualifications of each man is being established and with the co-operation of commercial organizations such as chambers of commerce and commercial clubs, a country-wide survey to locate posts in private life for which they would be fitted is to be made.

"The War department realizes," the announcement said, "that from the very nature of their army service, many of these officers have lost all touch with home and home conditions, and as a result may experience great difficulty in securing suitable employment."

 (Third Sunday of Month)

Last Sunday, the Twenty-Second Sunday after Trinity, the attendance at both Church School and Morning Prayer was rather small on account of the rain. However, the spirit in both cases was very good. The music in the Church School was well sung, and there was a slight review of the special instruction of the two previous Sundays. In addition the children were asked what they should do upon entering the Church, when, why, and how the sign of the cross is made, and why different postures are assumed in public worship. Upon entering Church everyone should kneel down and say a prayer such as: "Let the words of my mouth and the meditation of my heart be always acceptable in Thy sight, O Lord, my strength and my redeemer." The sign of the cross which is the symbol of the Christian Religion is made at various and sundry times during the Services of the Church by the Clergy and the people. It is a precious inheritance, and should not be made light of. It does not belong to any one denomination in Christendom but distinguishes us as Christians from Mohammedans, Buddhists, and Confucianists. The reason for the postures is simple. We stand to praise God, we sit to hear the Bible read and to hear instruction, and we kneel to pray. There are sermons in the postures that we assume, and in the furniture of the Church. They are silent sermons; they are symbolical. At Morning Prayer the music was hearty and all entered into it. The sermon was concerned with the text: "Forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive those who trespass against us." The Gospel for the day contained the story of the servant who owed his master a thousand talents; and who was forgiven that debt when he brought his master. The same servant, however, went out and cast into prison his fellow servant who owed him a hundred pence, and who could not pay it to him. When the master of the first servant heard this he was wroth, and delivered him to the tormentors, till he should pay all that was due unto him." Then St. Matthew says in conclusion: "So likewise shall my heavenly Father do also unto you, if ye from your hearts forgive not every one his brother their trespasses." Forgiveness of sins is one of the central doctrines of the Christian Religion, but it all depends upon the inner spirit of the Christian. If we cannot forgive those who trespass against us, we cannot expect them to forgive us when we trespass against them, and certainly God demands love and charity on our part towards our neighbors, before He can forgive us our sins. It is a fair doctrine. Most of us need to ask God to give us the ability to be forgiving to our neighbors, so that He may be forgiving to us. One depends upon the other.

Next Sunday, the Twenty-third Sunday after Trinity, Church School at 9:45, and Morning Prayer and Sermon at 11:00. At the service there will be an address by Mr. George Mason of Highland Park on the subject of the General Church Program as outlined by the recent General Convention of the Church held in Portland, Ore. Please be present and improve the attendance of the Church Service. You need the spiritual grace that comes from the Church, and God needs you for his service.

SUNDAY SERVICES:
 Sunday School 9:45
 Morning Service 11:00
 Epworth League 7:00
 Evening Service 7:45

The coming Sunday morning theme will be "The Great Discovery." The evening service will be a musical program interspersed with interpretations of passages from the greatest inspirational writers, the entire theme being "Out of Darkness into Light." The Church School and Proaching Service attendance last Sunday was remarkably good considering the all-day rain. The morning discourse was a strong appeal for every one to get into a systematic plan of Bible study, such as is now afforded by the Church School.

It was pointed out that the very problems which so greatly trouble and perplex us in our daily life yield to a happy solution in the clear light in which we live and walk if we make it the habit of our lives to really study the Bible earnestly and systematically every day. Unnumbered surprises of clear shining on all manner of problems await every one who really studies the Bible.

But it must be real study. There must be method, system in it. The Church of today has developed plans for a Church School which makes it not only possible, but easy for every man, woman and child in the community to study the Bible with a highly perfected system and with the best helps ever devised. This type of Church School is now organized in our Church and ready to assist every one in the community, not already a member of some other Church School, to make the most of the study of the great Book of God. Come to the Church next Sunday morning at 9:45 and learn about it. If you are unable to get to the Church, call up the pastor, both phones. Bell phones 124-W, and inquire how you can get in on the study courses.

WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and never suspect it. Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease. If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness, are often times symptoms of kidney trouble.

Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper—Advertisement.

Tanlac Put Him Back on Job, Says Davis

"I've never been much of a hand at praising medicines, but I can certainly say something good for Tanlac," said Geo. Davis, 110 Naglee St., San Francisco, Calif.

"I had a bad case of ptomaine poisoning and it came pretty near laying me out altogether. For three months I was in an awful condition and suffering constantly from diarrhea. I became weak all over and was going from bad to worse. I tried everything I knew of, but it was beginning to look like nothing would ever reach my case.

"Then, a friend of mine recommended Tanlac to me. And it's a fact, four bottles have made a clean sweep of my troubles and built me up to where I feel like a new man. I am working every day now and when it comes to recommending Tanlac I can't put it too strong."

He Had to Stand It
Yesterday while I was seasick it seemed to me I couldn't stand six days more of it or any more of it. Which reminded me of a remark I once heard a very old man make. He was ill and was telling me of his troubles. Without thinking I said: "I don't see how you stand it." The old man thought a while and then replied feebly: "I have to stand it!" There are many disagreeable things we can't get away from; we are compelled to stand them.—E. W. Howe, in "Daily Notes of a Trip Around the World."

ANYTHING TO BE OBLIGING
Little Thing Like That Mentioned Was Nothing to This Applicant for American Citizenship.

At each hearing where applications of foreign-born persons seeking citizenship in the United States are considered and passed on, incidents come up which add humor to the otherwise serious process. At a recent hearing before Judge W. W. Thornton of the Superior court, Room 1, George Mackay, United States naturalization officer, was quizzing an applicant regarding his knowledge of the inner workings of the government and regarding the history of the United States.

"Who was the first President of the United States?" he asked.
"Washington, D. C.," replied the anxious applicant.

"Just leave off the D. O.," said Mr. Mackay.

"Oh, I don't care," said the applicant nonchalantly, with an accompanying gesture of his hand.—Washington Star.

Backed Up and Sat Down.
When I was a freshman in high school I had a crush on one of my teachers and was anxious to always appear at my best before her.

One evening after school I returned to the room to talk to her. She was busy and told me to sit down on a low stool by her desk to wait. I backed up and sat down.

The janitor had to pull me out of the wastebasket, which I had mistaken for the stool.—Exchange.

Milk for the Baby.
Two-year-old Betty had always used a special brand baby milk but recently has been drinking very little, preferring the more solid foods. At the subject of discussion and it was decided to discontinue the special milk when Phyllis, six years old, who had been listening with interest, inquired: "Daddy, where do they get milk for babies? Is that calf's milk?"

Speed Necessary.
"Of course," said Miss Cayenne, "I am willing to pay more for rapid work."
"How rapid must it be?" inquired the dressmaker.
"Rapid enough to keep a dress from going out of style between the time I order it and the time I get a chance to wear it."

OFFERED TO IDOL

Maidens and Children Unhappy
Victims of Baal.

Archeologists Have Unearthed, In Ruins of Carthage, Temple Where Infamous Rites Were Practiced.

Unearthed among the ruins of Carthage, in northern Africa, according to official notification received by the French government from Count Byron Prorok, famous archeologist, is the great temple of Baal, where pagan priests practiced their indescribable human sacrifices centuries ago.

Count Prorok has sent word to his government that a set of sacrificial urns believed to contain the bones of maidens and children sacrificed to Baal have been unearthed and identified.

Identification of the temple of Baal beyond any question of doubt is possible through the discoveries already made. Baal, or Baal-Hammon, is the monstrous deity mentioned hundreds of times in the Bible and in other ancient writings. Students of the Bible and children who attend Sunday school remember passages in the Old Testament telling how the Israelites were warned against this idolatrous worship and its infamous practices.

The chief characteristic of the Baal-Hammon worship was the sacrifice of human beings in cruel and varied forms. Each temple of Baal contained a huge and monstrous idol, usually of bronze, but sometimes of stone, and it was to this idol that the victims were sacrificed. Occasionally young children were offered up, but usually it was some beautiful maiden who was chosen to become the "bride of Baal."

Sometimes the victims were consumed by fire. Frequently they were subjected to longer and even more atrocious tortures. When the victim was to perish by fire, three different methods were used. In every case, however, the maiden was first placed "in the arms of Baal," or, rather, on a sort of platform on the knees of the seated idol between the arms.

By one method fire was made to spout from the mouth of the overhanging head. By another the platform itself was heated red-hot. By a third the platform was tipped backward by a mechanical contrivance and the victim was hurled into a seething fiery furnace in the interior of the idol.

More cruel even than the death by fire was the placing of the "bride" on luxurious cushions laid in the lap of Baal. When the priests departed, sealing the great stone doors after them, lions or other savage beasts were turned loose to roam the temple floor. The terror-stricken maiden could then remain on the cushions slowly to starve to death or might choose the quicker method of casting herself to the beasts below.

The grand essentials of happiness are—something to do, something to love and something to hope for.—Boston Transcript.

Early Start.

A doctor lately married a girl whom he had ushered into the world twenty years ago. Real love at first sight.—London Opinion.

"My Dad" at Crystal, Wed. November 22

For sheer drama it would be difficult to find a motion picture to beat "My Dad," in which Johnny Walker of "Over the Hill" fame makes his debut as an R-C star at the Crystal Theater, Wednesday, Nov. 22.

The nobility of self-sacrifice, the heroism of a son in fighting to prove his father innocent of a murder, forms the theme of this most unusual picture. And it is a story that fits Johnny Walker as snugly as the proverbial glove. It shows him struggling through frozen trails, risking his life in tremendous blizzards, suffering the tortures of the numbing cold until he reaches the cabin of the man from whom he can obtain the evidence to prove his father innocent.

There are any number of big dramatic episodes in "My Dad." More over it is filled with the elusive quality we call "heart interest." The love of the son for the father will chisel into the hearts of all beholders.

Ruth Clifford as the girl also gives a fine performance and the broad reaches of the snow lands and towering timbers form a striking frame for her beauty. Other players of high calibre make up the cast.

Powdered Heroine.

From a Story—"A smile crept over her face." Probably the smile realized that if it went any faster it would kick up too much dust.

Harlow Cribb was a Kenosha visitor on Monday of this week.

Paul Duckwitz was in Kenosha on Monday.

Mrs. Frank Luke of Wheatland visited over Sunday at the home of her sister, Mrs. Albert Hanke and attended the Arm stice day celebration in Antioch on Saturday.

Miss Anna Babor and friend from Chicago were out over Sunday at Miss Babor's home.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Kinrade entertained relatives from Libertyville over Sunday.

The Camp Fire Girls realized more than fifteen dollars at their food and candy sale on Armistice day.

This money is to pay for their charter and dues to the National organization of Camp Fire Girls, located in New York city.

The aim of the Camp Fire organization is to teach the girls the value of work, health and love in their daily lives and to make strong, useful, efficient women and citizens of tomorrow.

The posters which the girls displayed to advertise the sale were of their own original designs in which they made practical application of art and design learned in grade school.

For each poster displayed an honor badge is to be awarded. Other honors will be given for home craft work done in the home, health craft, camp craft, hand craft, nature craft, business ability, citizenship and patriotism.

The Camp Fire is expected to be self-supporting. The girls earn the money for their various activities either individually or in a group. This in turn is expected to develop an independence and love of team work.

The cooperation of parents and teachers is urged in this work of building for future womanhood and citizenship.

The little folks of the first, second and third grades invite you to attend the entertainment they are giving tomorrow (Friday) evening, at the high school auditorium, at 7:30. Don't miss a good time! The "Mother Goose" dramatization will help you to recall the time when you enjoyed "Little Boy Blue," "Little Miss Muffet" and the others of the series. You will want to see the folk dances, too. Miss Dunham and Miss Tibbitts have spent much time in drilling their pupils and the children have responded to the drill very nicely.

But the big event of the evening is "The Harvest Queen's Ball," a play-let in which 75 children appear. There are queens of sunshine, garden, field, orchard, woodland and harvest, with their faithful followers, besides weeds, worms, fairies, pumpkins, gardeners, golden rods, asters and drifting leaves. The costumes will please you. The final scene of the pageant is worth the price of admission alone.

Program—Mother Goose dramatization (first grade pupils): Little Miss Muffet, Little Boy Blue, Little Red Hen, Little Jack Horner, Little Bo Peep, I Love Little Pussy, Old Mother Hubbard.

Folk Dances (first grade): Looby Loo, Hickory, Dickory Dock. (Second grade): I See You, The Shoemaker's Dance. (Third grade girls): Danish Greelings. (Third grade boys): Indian Dance.

"Just a Song at Twilight," "America, the Beautiful" selection by grammar grade glee club.

The Harvest Queen's Ball:

Sunshine Queen Betty Warriner
Garden Queen Lucille Peterson
Field Queen Helen Pachay
Orchard Queen Lillian Bartlett
Woodland Queen Ruth Panowsky
Harvest Queen Hazel Hawkins

Don't forget the dinner at Guild Hall on Road Opening Day.

You can choose what you want and know it's good at the cafeteria dinner served by Guild ladies.

A BIRTH-MARK

It was a steamer, and when he came up on deck in the early morning he was accosted by several fellow passengers, who asked in chorus: "Where did you get that eye, old man?"

"That? That's a birth-mark," he replied.

"Birth-mark he blowed! It is a black eye."

"I tell you it's a birth-mark," he retorted with emphasis.

Then they gathered around him, and in one voice shouted: "Birth-mark? We don't think!"

"Well, it happened this way, boys. I tried to get into the wrong berth last night."

Long Wear to Rubbers.

Rubbers will wear longer if a half inch layer of tissue paper is crushed into the heel. The paper will form a cushion for the hard heel of the shoe and lessen the wear on the rubbers.

Grass Lake School Trevor School Notes

CLARA MICHELL, Editor

Mrs. H. Michell and Josephine Michell went to Chicago Sunday evening. Edward Wilson will soon leave for Chicago. We are very sorry that he is going.

Quite a few ducks are flying, but the mudhens are all gone. Louis Forbrich caught the first skunk of the season, Lester Trierger was the second lucky trapper.

Mr. Louis Pregonzer and Miss Isabel Pregonzer accompanied by Lester Trierger, went to Lake Geneva Sunday to visit Arthur Pregonzer, who is attending a military school there.

Friday, Nov. 10th, was Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Nickerson's anniversary, which they celebrated.

The school Betterment society, at its regular meeting, elected a new president, Edward Wilson, and a new secretary, Mary Michell. The monitors appointed were Randolph Strumetz, Louis Forbrich and Marcelle Holmes.

The 7th and 8th grades are practicing their lettering and are planning to start their books this week.

Hickory School

Pauline Pullen was absent Monday. Quite a number have been absent during the last two weeks on account of illness.

Mr. Simpson visited school last Wednesday.

Ruth Paulsen entered school Monday after spending two months with her parents visiting in Denmark. They returned home Thursday.

Miss Josie Mann returned home Sunday after spending several weeks with her sister, Mrs. Austin Savage.

Mrs. Paul Proulx and children spent the last of the week with relatives in Zion.

The basket social, which was held at the Hickory church Friday night, was not very well attended.

Primary Room—We have had a great many visitors of late. This week the following visited: Little Nina Marks; Alice Hahn, Miss Hope, Wilmet primary teacher, and Supt. Kerwin.

Busy little fingers have changed the appearance of the room from Halloween to Thanksgiving. The sand table has been changed from the witches Halloween to Pilgrims Going to Church.

The perfect spellers are: Third grade, Caroline Larwin and George Mathews; fourth grade, Elva Marks and Jack Kyanagh.

Lyle and George Mathews were a few minutes tardy one day last week. Russell Longman was absent one-half day Wednesday.

Upper room—Supt. Kerwin paid us a visit on Wednesday of last week.

The school bell has had a vacation this week due to the pranks of our friends on Halloween night. Nevertheless we are hoping to hear its cheerful voice once more Monday morning.

The seventh grade arithmetic class has been heretofore blabbing with the equation in percentage this week.

Charles Polze kindly brought a football to school this week which the boys have greatly enjoyed.

We kindly thank everyone in Trevor who lent us furniture, lights, carpets, etc., for our program.

We have three pupils in our room who have neither been absent nor tardy since school began. They are, Fred Forester, Chester Runyard and Adeline Oatling.

Our attendance record is improving every week; only one absent this week, Charles Polze was absent Thursday forenoon.

Last Friday afternoon we played games from 3:00 until 4:00 to lend variety to our daily program.

Miss Alice Hahn, who attends Cross Lake school, visited us on Friday.

OFF FOR VIRGINIA

SYNOPSIS.—To the Kentucky wilderness outpost commanded by Jerome Sanders, in the time immediately preceding the Revolution, comes a white boy fleeing from a tribe of Shawnees by whom he had been captured and adopted as a son of the chief Kah-too. He is given shelter and attracts the favorable attention of Dave Yandell, a leader among the settlers. The boy warns of the coming of a Shawnee war party. The fort is attacked, and only saved by the timely appearance of a party of Virginians. The leader of these is fatally wounded, but in his dying moments recognizes the fugitive youth as his son. At Red Oaks, plantation on the James river, Virginia, Colonel Dale's home, the boy appears with a message for the colonel, who after reading it introduces the bearer to his daughter Barbara as her cousin Erskine Dale. Erskine meets two other cousins, Harry Dale and Hugh Willoughby. Yandell visits Red Oaks. At the country fair at Williamsburg Erskine meets a youth, Dane Grey, and there at once arises a bitter antagonism between them. Grey, in liquor, insults Erskine, and the latter, for the moment all Indian, draws his knife. Yandell disarms him. As Erskine leaves Red Oaks that night to return to the wilderness, Yandell, with Harry and Hugh, who have been permitted to visit the Sanders fort, overtakes him. At the plantation the boy had left a note in which he gave the property, which is his as the son of Colonel Dale's older brother, to Barbara. The party is met by three Shawnees, who bring news to Erskine (whose Indian name is White Arrow) that his foster father, Kah-too, is dying and desires him to come to the tribe and become its chief. After a brief visit to the fort Erskine goes to the tribe. He finds there a white woman and her half-breed daughter, Early Morn, and saves the woman from death. He tells Kah-too he is with the Americans against the British. An enemy, Crooked Lightning, overhears him. Kah-too sends Erskine to a council where British envoys meet Indian chiefs. Dane Grey is there, and the bitter feeling is intensified. Crooked Lightning denounces Erskine as a traitor and friend of the Americans. The youth escapes death by flight. Reaching his tribe, Erskine finds his enemies have the upper hand. He is held as a prisoner, waiting only for the arrival of Crooked Lightning, to be burned at the stake.

"She will not burn. Some fur traders have been here. The white chief McGee sent me a wampum belt and a talk. His messenger brought much fire-water and he gave me a gift." He pointed to a silver-mounted rifle, and I promised that she should live. But I cannot help you," Erskine thought quickly. He laid his rifle down, stepped slowly outside, and stretched his arms with a yawn. Then still listlessly he moved toward his horse as though to take care of it. But the braves were too keen and watchful and they were not fooled by the fact that he had left his rifle behind. Before he was close enough to leap for Firefly's back, three bucks darted from behind a lodge and threw themselves upon him. In a moment he was face down on the ground, his hands were tied behind his back, and when turned over he looked up into the grinning face of Black Wolf, who with the help of another bravo dragged him to a lodge and roughly threw him within, and left him alone. On the way he saw his foster-mother's eyes flashing helplessly, saw the girl Early Morn indignantly telling her mother what was going on, and the white woman's face was wet with tears. He turned over so that he could look through the tent-flaps. Two bucks were driving a stake in the center of the space around which the lodges were ringed. Two more were bringing fagots of wood, and it was plain what was going to become of him. His foster-mother, who was fiercely, bartering one of the chiefs, turned angrily into Kah-too's lodge and he could see the white woman rocking her body and wringing her hands. Then the old chief appeared and lifted his hands.

"Crooked Lightning will be very angry. The prisoner is his—not yours. It is for him to say what the punishment shall be—not for you. Wait for him! Hold a council and if you decide against him, though he is my son—he shall die." For a moment the preparations ceased and all turned to the prophet, who had appeared before his lodge.

"Kah-too is right," he said. "The Great Spirit will not approve if White Arrow die except by the will of the council—and Crooked Lightning will be angry." There was a chorus of protesting grunts, but the preparations ceased. The boy could feel the uneasiness in the prophet's tone and he knew that the impostor wanted to curry further favor with Crooked Lightning and not rob him of the joy of watching his victim's torture. So the braves went back to their fire-water, and soon the boy's foster-mother brought him something to eat, but she could say nothing for Black Wolf had appointed himself sentinel and sat, rifle in hand, at the door of the lodge.

Night came on. The drinking became more furious and once Erskine saw a pale-brown arm thrust from behind the lodge and place a jug at the feet of Black Wolf, who grunted and drank deep. One by one the braves went to drunken sleep about the fire. The fire died down and by the last flickering flame the lad saw Black Wolf's chin sinking sleepily to his chest. There was the slightest rustle behind the tent. He felt something groping for his hands and feet, felt the point of a knife graze the skin of his wrist and ankles—felt the thongs loosen and drop apart. Noiselessly, inch by inch, he crept to the wall of the tent, which was carefully lifted for him. Outside he rose and waited. Like a shadow the girl Early Morn stole before him and like a shadow he followed. In a few minutes they were by the river-bank, away from the town. The moon rose, and from the shadow of a beech the white woman stepped forth with his rifle and powder-horn and bullet-pouch and some food. She pointed to his horse a little farther down. He looked long and silently into the Indian girl's eyes and took the white woman's shaking hand. Once he looked back. The Indian girl was stoic as stone. A bar of moonlight showed the white woman's face wet with tears.

Again Dave Yandell from a watchtower saw a topknot rise above a patch of cane, now leafless and winter-bitten—saw a hand lifted high above it with a palm of peace toward him. And again an Indian youth emerged, this time leading a black horse with a drooping head. Both came painfully on, staggering, it seemed, from wounds or weakness, and Dave sprang from the tower and rushed with others to the gate. He knew the horse and there was dread in his heart. Perhaps the approaching Indian had slain the boy, had stolen the horse, and was lately coming there for food.

"I told Kah-too I would fight with the Americans against the British and Indians; and with you against him!"

"Don't you know me, Dave?" he asked, weakly.
"My God! It's White Arrow!"

CHAPTER X

Straightway the lad sensed a curious change in the attitude of the garrison. The old warmth was absent. The atmosphere was charged with suspicion, hostility. Old Jerome was surly; his old playmates were distant. Only Dave, Mother Sanders and Lydia were unchanged. The predominant note was curiosity, and they started to ply him with questions, but Dave took him to a cabin, and Mother Sanders brought him something to eat.

"Had a pretty hard time," stated Dave. The boy nodded.
"I had only three bullets. Firefly went lame and I had to lead him. I couldn't eat and Firefly couldn't get phansant. I got one from a hawk," he explained. "What's the matter out there?"

"Nothing," said Dave, gruffly, and he made the boy go to sleep. His story came when all were around the fire at supper, and was listened to with eagerness. Again the boy felt the hostility and it made him resentful and lonely. Most fluid and sensitive natures have a chameleon quality, no matter what stratum of adamant they inhabit. The boy was dressed like an Indian, he looked like one, and he had brought back, it seemed, the bearing of an Indian—his wildness and stoicism. He spoke like a chief in a council, and even in English his phrasing and metaphors belonged to the red man. No wonder they believed the stories they had heard of him—but there was shame in many faces and little doubt in any save one before he finished.

He had gone to see his foster-mother and his foster-father—old chief Kah-too, the Shawnee—because he had given his word. Kah-too thought he was dying and wanted him to be chief when the Great Spirit called. Kah-too had once saved his life, had been kind, and made him a son. That he could not forget. An evil prophet had come to the tribe and through his enemies, Crooked Lightning and Black Wolf, had gained much influence. They were to burn a captive white woman as a sacrifice. He had stayed to save her, to argue with old Kah-too, and carry the wampum and a talk to a big council with the British. He had made his talk—and escaped. He had gone back to his tribe, had been tried, and was to be burned at the stake. Again he had escaped with the help of the white woman and her daughter. The tribes had joined the British, and even then they were planning an early attack on this very fort and all others.

The interest was tense and every face was started at this calm statement of their immediate danger. Old Jerome burst out:

"Why did you have to escape from the council—and from the Shawnees?"

"At the council I told the Indians that they should be friends, not enemies, of the Americans, and Crooked Lightning called me a traitor. He had overheard my talk with Kah-too."

"What was that?" asked Dave, quickly.

"I told Kah-too I would fight with the Americans against the British and Indians; and with you against him!"

And he turned away and went back to the cabin.

"What'd I tell ye?" cried Dave indignantly, and he followed the boy, who had gone to his bunk and put one big hand on his shoulder.

"They thought you'd turned Indian again," he said, "but it's all right now."

"I know," said the lad, and with a muffled sound that was half the grunt of an Indian and half the sob of a white man turned his face away.

Again Dave reached for the lad's shoulder.

"Don't blame 'em too much. I'll tell you now. Some fur traders came by here, and one of 'em said you was going to marry an Indian girl named Early Morn; that you was going to stay with 'em and fight with 'em alongside the British. Of course I know better, but—"

"Why?" interrupted Erskine, "they must have been the same traders who came to the Shawnee town and brought whisky."

"That's what the feller said and why folks here believed him."

"Who was he?" demanded Erskine.

"You know him—Dane Grey."

All tried to make amends straightway for the injustice they had done him, but the boy's heart remained sore that their trust was so little. Then, when they gathered all settlers within the fort and made all preparations and no Indians came, many seemed again to get distrustful and the lad was not happy. The winter was long and hard. A blizzard had driven the game west and south and the garrison was hard put to it for food. Every day that the hunters went forth the boy was among them and he did far more than his share in the killing of game. But when winter was breaking, more news came in of the war. The flag that had been fashioned of a soldier's white shirt, an old blue army coat, and a red petticoat was now the Stars and Stripes of the American cause. Burgoyne had not cut off New England, that "head of the rebellion," from the other colonies.

On the contrary, the Americans had beaten him at Saratoga and marched his army off under those same Stars and Stripes, and for the first time Erskine heard of gallant Lafayette—now he had run to Washington with the portentous news from his king—that beautiful, passionate France would stretch forth her helping hand. And Erskine learned what that news meant to Washington's "naked and starving" soldiers dying on the frozen hillsides of Valley Forge. Then George Rogers Clark had passed the fort on his way to Williamsburg to get money and men for his great venture in the Northwest, and Erskine got a ready permission to accompany him as soldier and guide. After Clark was gone the lad got restless; and one morning, when the first breath of spring came, he mounted his horse, in spite of arguments and protestations, and set forth for Virginia on the wilderness trail.

He was going to join Clark, he said, but more than Clark and the war were drawing him to the outer world. What it was he hardly knew, for he was not yet much given to searching his heart or mind. He did know, however, that some strange force had long been working within him that was steadily growing stronger, was surging now like a surge and giving him between strange moods of depression and exaltation. Perhaps it was but the spirit of spring in his heart, but with his mind's eye he was ever seeing at the end of his journey the face of his little cousin Barbara Dale.

"You took me by surprise and you have changed—but I don't know how much."

Supreme Tribunal's Final Decision
Holds That Enlightenment and Culture of Mikado's People Is Not Germanic to Controversy.

Washington, Nov. 14.—The United States Supreme court held that Japanese are not white within the meaning of the American law and are not entitled to citizenship in the United States. The decision was a confirmation of a ruling by the California Circuit Court of Appeals in a test case brought by Takao Ozawa of Honolulu, who claimed he was "white" and therefore eligible for citizenship in the United States. The Supreme court of the state of Washington was upheld in denying citizenship to Takao Yamashita and Charles Ito, who claimed he was "white" and therefore eligible for citizenship in the United States. The decision held that the two Japanese were not entitled to naturalization under United States laws and therefore could not enter a business partnership.

The Supreme court's decision in these cases has long been awaited, particularly on the Pacific coast, where anti-Japanese feeling exists.

Ozawa contended he was entitled to American citizenship as a descendant of the white tribe of Als. He started his fight for citizenship several years ago in Hawaii, but was defeated in the courts there and also in the higher courts in California. Ozawa has lived in Hawaii since his childhood and was educated in the American schools there.

Yamashita presented an argument similar to that of Ozawa. He appealed to the Supreme court when the courts of the state of Washington denied him the privilege of incorporating a real estate company because of his ineligibility of citizenship.

The vessel carried a cargo valued at $500,000.

The officers and crew, twenty, in number and all of Chicago, took to the small boats fifteen minutes before the ship sank and rowed safely to shore despite a strong wind and high waves.

Supreme Tribunal Holds That Ordinances to Enforce Vaccination Against Smallpox Are Valid.

Washington, Nov. 14.—Municipal ordinances authorizing boards of health to enforce vaccination against smallpox and take other precautions to prevent epidemics are valid, the Supreme court held in a case brought by Rosilyn Zucht against officials of San Antonio, Tex., contending that, while state legislation might legally confer such jurisdiction, municipalities could not.

GRADE CROSSINGS

Upon one day recently eight were ushered into eternity upon the grade crossings of the steam railroads of Cook county. If these abominable death traps had been eliminated—this should have been done long ago, these eight people, whose existence was snuffed out in this horrible manner, would doubtless be enjoying life today.

Statistics in the office of Coroner Hoffman show that from 1905 to 1921, both inclusive, the amazing number of 5,274 people met death upon the steam railroads of Cook county. We do not know how many of this number were victims of the grade crossings, but it is safe to assume that a very large percent of them were.

When railroads first came into being our population was small and the automobile was unknown. Now our population is large and constantly increasing, while automobile traffic is heavy and rapidly growing heavier.

In some countries—England for instance, railroad grade crossings are not permitted. This is certainly a wise precaution, whose benefits cannot be estimated. Grade crossing accidents are unknown there, while with us they have become so numerous that they attract but little public attention.

Railroad grade crossings should be abolished. The only argument that can be used against it is the cost it will entail upon the various roads, but this is not worthy of consideration when one thinks of the thousands whose lives have been crushed out because grade crossings have been allowed to exist. How long will a patient and suffering public tolerate a condition which is ever a dangerous menace to life?

The public health service is engaged in devising means to combat disease, but here are death traps which exact a daily toll of victims and no effort is made to remedy conditions. Many laws have been enacted for the protection of the public, but not one now in existence will be more of a protection to human life than will a statute requiring the abolition of all grade crossings upon the railroads of Illinois.

The damage suit of Andrew F. Stahl of Kenosha against the Soo Line railroad for $50,000 damages as the result of injury received in a railway accident near Wheatland last February, came to an abrupt close at Kenosha last Thursday evening when Judge Belden handed down an order directing a verdict of judgment for the defendant and ordered the case dismissed. The suit was brought as a result of a crossing accident which occurred on Feb. 6, 1922, at the Wheatland crossing of the right of way of the Soo Line, when the automobile in which A. F. Stahl, the plaintiff, and Joseph Sweaney were riding, was struck by a passenger train. Sweaney was killed instantly and Stahl was badly injured.

It leaked out in court circles there that Mr. Stahl had refused an offer made by the railway company of $2,750 for full settlement of the case out of court. This offer, it is stated, was made by the company to prevent the case from going into the courts.

Leaving a fortune of approximately $50,000, Henry T. Smith, aged 69, long known as the "Hermit of Salem," died Thursday afternoon at Racine county asylum following an attack of cerebral hemorrhage. For many years the deceased had lived in a one-room hut on his farm near the village of Salem where his eccentricities had long been the talk of the people of the community.

From the time that he came to Kenosha county, nearly half a century ago, he had lived alone, shunning companions and making only very infrequent visits to the village. He had lived very frugally and had saved a considerable amount of money.

When the deceased was declared incompetent, Joseph Funck was appointed as his guardian and took charge of his estate. The money which was found hoarded at the home was invested in Liberty bonds and other properties and has kept increasing. The last report showed that the hermit had $25,369.18 in cash and bonds and in addition owned the small farm on which he lived and other property. The total value of the estate will probably be $50,000.

City Engineer J. G. Skeels, of Lake Geneva, vouches for the following egg story: During the latter part of the recent summer a hen was found dead in the chicken yard and was buried in the garden. Recently, while spading the garden the remains of the hen were upturned, completely decayed and by the side of the remains an egg intact except that the shell was somewhat shattered and inside the shell was found a fully developed chick as fresh as tho it had just broken from its shell in an incubator. The chicken was dead but showed not a trace of decay.

Elmer Hammond, arrested two weeks ago on a serious charge following a spectacular flight with Mrs. William Peterson, Round Lake, is now serving a sentence of 60 days in the Racine, Wis., jail, and will be obliged to pay a fine of $100 and costs. Sheriff Elmer Green announces. Hammond was taken on a small farm west of Racine. With him at the time was Mrs. Peterson. Both were taken to jail. Peterson decided to drop the charges against his wife and took her home with him. He insisted, however, that Hammond be punished to the full extent of the law.

Ungratefulness on the part of Hammond, it appeared, caused Peterson to insist on the punishment. The prisoner borrowed the money used on the trip from Peterson and when he left took besides Mrs. Peterson, Peterson's pipe and coat.

No action will be taken in this county against either Mrs. Peterson or the prisoner, it was announced.

Charles E. Hook of Ournee reported to the police last week that his Ford touring car had been stolen from in front of the Mesonic temple, where he and his wife were attending an affair. The machine was found abandoned on Chapel street, between Glen Rock avenue and Washington street later by Policeman Metz.

The auto thieves took a flashlight which was in the rear seat of the car. As turkey feathers were in the car when found, the police are inclined to believe that the car was "borrowed" for the purpose of stealing turkeys from nearby farms.

Contract for the construction of the $250,000 addition to the courthouse probably will be let the first of the year, and everything is being rushed so that most of the work can be completed in 1923.

The plans and specifications will be completed so that they can be submitted to the Board of Supervisors at the December meeting. It is planned, and they will be advertised at an early date thereafter.

The various county officers are giving their suggestions to the building committee so that in case the annex will cost more than now anticipated, but if it can be built for $250,000, as estimated, it will not be necessary to issue the remaining $50,000 worth of bonds, states Lew A. Hendee, county clerk.

AN UNPLEASANT SIGN

A farmer, being short of horses, hitched a mule and an ox together to help with the haying. After a little while the ox stopped, lay down and refused to move.

The farmer said nothing, but quietly unhitched the animal, returned it to the stable, and made the mule pull the wagon the rest of the journey.

At night the ox spoke confidentially to the mule:

"What did the master say today?" he asked.

"Nothing that I hear," replied the mule.

The next day exactly the same thing happened.

"What did the master say this time?" asked the ox that night.

"Didn't hear him say anything," replied the mule, "but he's leaning over the fence out there talking to a butcher."

FOREWARNED

Mr. Grumbelgh was an irritable old man, and was furious because he had no applications in answer to his advertisement for a chauffeur.

"I cannot understand it at all," he said to a candid friend.

"But didn't you say in your advertisement that the applicant must be well acquainted with the neighborhood?"

"Yes," said Grumbelgh. "I must have some one who knows his way about."

"Ah," replied the friend; "but those who know the neighborhood would know you, too."

Hunters Are Breaking State Law, Is Claim

Game wardens say that many hunter at Lake county lakes are violating the law by shooting ducks and geese before sunrise. As a result, a search is being made for these "cheaters," and all caught will be heavily fined. It is asserted that many nimrods who do not take their sportmanship as keenly as they do their desire to kill a bag of birds, are now engaged during the forbidden hours. The feathered tribe are unable to protect themselves when hunters take advantage of the cover of darkness. The penalty for shooting game birds between sunset and sunrise is $25 as the minimum and $200 as the maximum fine.

Hunters assert that motor cars are killing more rabbits than the nimrods, and that there is likely to be a shortage in the crop of bunnies this season. The glaring headlights of the automobiles as they travel at night have an irresistible fascination for the animals. They have a habit of squatting in the road and waiting until the ear approaches, and thousands of them are run down and killed. The open season for killing rabbits with a gun started Nov. 1. Hunters in this vicinity fear that there is a disappointment in store for those who expect to find the animals numerous.

He was an ex-gob and had decided to give France the once-over, but this time he was going to do it in style. Accordingly, he took a first-class cabin, disposed his luggage and then sauntered on deck with a view toward stretching himself in a long chair and taking things easy. To his horror he saw a line forming, reminiscent of the old days. "Wot's this? Wot's this?" he gasped to a passing steward. "Fire drill?" "No, sir," replied the steward. "The ship's about to cross the three-mile line. That's all."

Campaign Boosts Home Merchants

Support of Local Business Institutions Will Make Greater Community

This is your city!
You are a partner in its prosperity.
If it grows and thrives, you profit in hard dollars and cents; if its growth is retarded and it goes backward, you lose. We have taken the former so much for granted that we have lost sight of the latter—particularly our own obligation in the matter.

You and your neighbors can say which it shall be.

You are a partner with everybody else in town, and the town—which is all the partners collectively—can be only as prosperous and progressive as the sum of the prosperity and the progress of the individual partners.

Do your share and there will be no question as to the outcome. It means money for you and your family; it means the same thing for your neighbors.

We, as a community, have fallen into a rut and some of our leading citizens have worked out a way to pull Antioch out and keep her on a solid road in the future.

Has Splendid Future

No community that we know of so much deserves this confidence as Antioch. This belief on the part of Antioch's business men is the cause for one of the biggest booster campaigns this place has known. The home merchants declare that nobody is going to push this city except the citizens themselves. To expect this help from outside is futile.

What we have lacked in the past is united leadership. We may have suspected what was needed, but we were not united on just how to go about to secure that need. The merchants are united for the common good. They are working for the interest of all who call this city "home."

Cash is the motor that will make Antioch forge to the front. But not in the way you think. You are not asked to part with your money. Not the cash that comes out of your pocket, but the cash that stays there is what will build this community.
How is that?

Buying from home merchants.

A Duty is Owed

You earn your money in this town —spend it here. Don't impoverish your town by taking the money out of it and sending it to a mail-order house far away. Don't take trains or trolley for a place a score of miles distant to buy there. In the former instance you are making some rich corporation richer—at your expense —and in the latter instance you are helping some big city store pay its heavy overhead by the higher profit tacked onto every single article you buy.

It's time you stopped robbing yourself and your town and paying tribute to stores and merchants who do nothing for you or for your community.

Consider it from another angle: You work here. You expect to find employment at your job for years to come, and that has induced you to acquire a home. Your family shares your comfort and well-being. They have made dear friends in Antioch, they profit by its schools (supported by taxes paid by your employer and by merchants of the town, as well as by yourself) and they benefit by its churches and enjoy its social life.
Now, say your employer gives your job to some outsider—what would it mean for you?

We shall have more to say on this subject next week.

THE ANTIOCH NEWS, ANTIOCH, ILL.

PARTNERS IN PROSPERITY

You and Antioch are Partners in prosperity. If Antioch, your town, prospers, you profit. This is simple logic. You have made this town your home. Your interests are here. As Antioch grows, as its business develops, in a like degree grow the benefits of the com- munity for yourself and family. Keep your money where your interests lie. You earn your money here; spend it here. When you patronize out-of-town merchants, the money which you spend will never be used towards the growth of your town. When you spend it here, you invest it. And the investment will pay dividends in making Antioch a better place in which to live. The prosperity of Antioch is assured, if you make it a point always to

"Camouflage" on City Merchandise*Home Town Merchants Not Required to Pay Large Overhead Expenses

"Camouflage" is one of the expressive words handed down to us by the war, but it exactly fits a similar practice in our peace time pursuits. We refer here to the so-called "bargain" of the city merchant, advertised for the benefit of the little town shopper, behind which the city merchant screens his true purposes. It is not his real aim to sell the man or the woman from the country a bill of goods at less cost than that same bill can be bought at the former's home town merchant; his aim is to use the specially-priced articles as a bait, and then sell him other goods—once he has the visitor in the store—at such prices as will yield sufficient profit not only to cover the latter but to bring a good return also on the under-priced article.

It cannot be denied that in many cases this "leader" is cheaper than the same article can be bought for in the home-town store. And the city merchant, in arguing with this country shopper, makes much of this point. But do not let that mislead you. If you will give the matter a little thought, you will find that in rare instances is it a staple article that is thus under-priced, and even if it were the situation would not be greatly changed. In the end, you pay well for it just the same. The Lake Villa merchant will be the first to admit that he cannot meet the price at which such "bargains" are offered and still make the reasonable profit to which he is entitled by his investment. But bring your receipted bills to him after your return from the city shopping-expedition, and he will show you how he could have saved you money by striking an average of more reasonable prices all the way down your list.

Helping Other Merchants

"Bargains" are often called the miracle-makers of business, for they bring trade where there was no trade before. This was a true miracle indeed, in a dull season, but like many of our modern miracles, they are Big City hoaxes. The victim is the man from the little town who buys in the city and helps the city merchant pay for his heavy overhead.

Your home-town merchants do not resort to methods of this kind. Business with them is based on the sound economic principle of supply and demand. You buy goods only when you need them, so that when you do buy, what you buy fills a want for you. That is true merchandising service. In that way, and in no other way do you get the full value for your money. "Bargains" thus become a stimulant in business that is sure to be succeeded by a reaction, and the healthy business life of a town like Lake Villa wants none of it.

In the city this method of carrying on business is possible for a considerable time because there are so many gullible buyers who are taken in by the alleged saving thus effected. When this inflated manner of merchandising gets into a nation's system to any considerable extent, we have a disturbed market, followed by trade congestion, with the result that we suddenly wake up to find ourselves in the midst of a financial panic.

Paying for City Style

In another article we will emphasize the heavy overhead that the city merchant has to meet. If you remember that you have to pay your share of this total of his fixed charges every time you visit his establishment, all will be well with you; for you will compare his range of prices with those of your home-town merchant and you will buy only those few things that are under-priced—if you buy at all. Desirable business locations double and triple in value because of the competition for their possession. High value means high taxes. The downtown congestion means greater fire hazard, with the resultant increase in insurance. You help to pay for the style and pomp displayed, and for the employment of many superfluous clerks and attendants—which in no sense add to the value of your goods.

Even more, however, is the country buyer singled out by the city mail-order house. This kind of buying is what the boy with the broken-bladed jackknife, in an effort to awaken our sportsmanship, so that he can feel his useless article upon us, calls "un-sight-unseen." We have all been "stung" in that way.

Mr. Rhondea took a truck load of boys from Allendale last week to Kenosha for a game of football with the boys there.

The largest mink of the season was caught last week by a town boy. He has been offered $10 for it.

Mr. and Mrs. Thayer spent a day last week in Antioch.

Mr. Curl and daughter were in Grayslake on business one day last week.

Mrs. Roselane and four children of Chicago spent the last week with her sister-in-law, Mrs. Etta Solacero.

Miss Augusta Lehmann is having extensive improvements made at her beautiful home here by setting out many shrubs and trees. The men are now busy on a Japanese garden, which will add much to the beauty of the place.

Mrs. P. R. Avery was a Chicago visitor Friday. Her nephew, George Gray, returned with her, remaining until Sunday.

Dr. A. F. Clark, district superintendent, was here Sunday afternoon for the first quarterly conference of the year.

Mr. Lundquist has already sold a number of radiophones, among them being one to Paul Avery last week.

Clayton Hamlin was confined to his home by illness several days recently.

Mrs. H. Potter spent Saturday and Sunday with her son's family at Hubbard Woods.

Mr. Ben Dicks and son, C. B., spent the past week on a hunting trip to northern Wisconsin.

Miss Mary Kerr spent the first of the week with her sister in Evanston.

Mr. and Mrs. James Leonard, Jr., of Chicago spent Sunday with the home folks here.

A contribution of fruit, vegetables and cash will be sent to Lake Bluff orphanage very soon, so will you kindly bring your contribution to the parsonage the coming week-end?

Fred Bartlett spent the week end with friends in the city.

Financial Report of Angola Cemetery

The Angola (Lake Villa) Cemetery Society wishes to submit the following statement to all who may be interested. All meetings of the society are open to members and friends, and all financial statements presented thereat, but for the benefit of those who have been unable to attend we give the following figures, from Oct., 1921, to Nov., 1922:

To Eugene Wilton for land... $ 410.00

Hamlin and Sons... 478.21

This bill includes the following items: Surveying, drainage, fencing on three sides, addition to iron fence, brick pillars, all material and labor for same except filling in of drainage ditch, same being donated.

To C. B. Dick, Jr.... 210.00

For grading of new land and preparation of about 600 feet of roadway for fill.

Total... $1098.21

Cash on hand in general fund 245.89

Outstanding note against the society... 210.00

This means that if we wish to clear our indebtedness immediately, we would still have a cash balance in our General fund.

Water System Fund:

Cash on Hand... 700.00

Paid Paul R. Avery for electric pump and compression tank... 100.00

This pumping equipment, which we have been most fortunate in obtaining at this unusual price, is in first-class condition and if purchased new, would cost the Society not less than $350.

This accounting does not include the sum paid to our caretaker for general upkeep during the year.

The Society is very grateful to its members and friends for the gifts of their time, labor and money, which is making the improvement of the Cemetery possible.

GERTRUDE M. HAMLIN,
President.

Joey Hucker, in writing a poem, "The Leap of Roushan Beg," said in one stanza, "Soft thy shin as silken skein," which really was, "Soft thy skin as silken skein."

The amount of money in the Lake Villa school bank club is $24.80. Wednesday was the third banking day we have had.

The school has some new records for the victrola for physical training. They are called, "The Daily Dozen." We have had two of the commands.

The seventh and eighth grades are planning to make raffle baskets.

In reading class Wednesday Jane Almbury, when explaining her lesson, said that a "bootless beast" meant that the man did not have any shoes on.

Sixth grade have been studying letter-writing the past week.

Mrs. N. Barnett and Mrs. William Fish visited school Tuesday afternoon.

Amelia Bernolfa and Mabel Keller were absent on account of sickness.

Mary Louise Keely had a birthday Saturday and entertained her class at her home Tuesday. Games were played and beat of all, ice cream and cake followed.

All enjoyed a good time, thanks to Mary Louise.

Eileen Philippi is back after a short illness. Nothing serious, just a cold.

Mrs. Burnett and Mrs. Fish visited the primary room Tuesday.

There was a basketball game at Barnstable hall Friday night between the married men and the single men. The score was 21 to 21.

There were several children absent last week on account of sickness.

Caroline Peterson is back to school after a few weeks of absence resulting from a bad cold.

HAD JUST BEEN GOING ALONG

Ebenezer's Explanation Surely Should Have Carried Weight, Under the Circumstances.

Ebenezer Washington was up before the city recorder for being drunk.

The judge looked at him for a moment and said: "You have been up here twice for being drunk, Ebenezer, and, seeing you are an old man, I am going to let you off with a fine of $5. Now, see that you don't come here again. It's the road, if you do."

The old negro thanked him and walked out of the court room.

The next morning Ebenezer was up in court again for being drunk. His case was called. The judge looked at him reprovingly and remarked:

"Ebenezer, I told you not to come up here again and here you are. Have you anything to say?"

The old negro looked up and replied: "No, sah, Judge, only dat dis am de same drunk."—Judge.

Open Postoffice
Box for Lake
Villa News Page

Through an arrangement made with the Lake Villa Commercial Association the Antioch Press will devote a page of its newspaper, The Antioch News, for Lake Villa News. The Association will appoint an editor for the Lake Villa news and the Antioch Press has rented box 222 for the purpose receiving items of interest from that section that will be compiled and passed on by the association representative. This is an opportunity long sought by the merchants and the association and pleases the Antioch Press to be able to furnish Lake Villa's long felt want. Mr. William Marks and Mr. Hussey are the prime movers in the accomplishment of this feature.

THE BARGAIN BAIT

The Bargain Bait has lured many to spend money foolishly. The Big Town store advertises "rare bargains." The Small Town housewife, eager to save, spends time and money to make a shopping trip by train, trolley or automobile. She buys the "bargains"—and then buys others things at higher prices, and the Bargain Bait has served its purpose. There is no bargain in such buying. You pay more—but you get no more. And mostly you get less. If you ever buy bargains this way, check up the cost of the merchants of Lake Villa and see how much you could have saved by spending your money at home
